ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

This International FDP aims to enhance faculty competencies in modern teaching-learning practices, research ethics, digital tools, and sustainable development. The program integrates theoretical insights with practical exposure, ensuring academic excellence and innovation. The International Faculty Development Programme (FDP) on Contemporary Trends in Teaching, Research, Technology & Sustainable Development is designed to equip educators, researchers, and academic professionals with the latest knowledge, skills, and innovative practices required in modern higher education. The programme focuses on enhancing teaching effectiveness through learner-centric pedagogies, digital tools, and emerging technologies such as Artificial Intelligence, blended learning, and e-content development. It also aims to strengthen research capabilities by addressing key aspects such as research design, academic writing, publication ethics, and the use of advanced analytical tools. Special emphasis is placed on integrating sustainability principles into teaching and research, aligning with global development goals and responsible academic practices. Through expert sessions, interactive workshops, and collaborative discussions, the FDP provides a platform for participants to engage with international perspectives, share best practices, and develop competencies that contribute to academic excellence and sustainable societal development.
